EVIE LADIN BAND

What do you get when combine a smooth singing, exquisite songwriter, claw-hammer banjo player; a body percussionist, dancing, upright bassist; and a seasoned, vocalist and guitarist on the same stage? Well, on September 22, 2018, the Pistol River Concert Association will get a fantastic Folk/Americana show, when The Evie Ladin Band takes the stage at the Friendship Hall.

Although Evie grew up in the suburban east, her childhood was immersed in Appalachia music, with musicians regularly coming through her home, and weekend trips to bluegrass and folk festivals. From these roots she developed traditional claw-hammer banjo picking skills, and an expressive songwriting ability based in the bluegrass tradition but exploring life in urban settings. Belting out her songs with strong, expressive vocals, Ladin has been known to add a little dancing to the mix, as she sees music and movement as going hand-in hand.

Keith Terry will be holding up and strumming the upright bass as well as providing backup vocals most of the show, but he is actually a percussion specialist. And the specialty of this specialist is body percussion. In addition to being the founder of the International Body Music Festival, Keith has performed broadly as a rhythmic dancer, and served as an educator in both these fields. He was on the faculty at UCLA for seven years where he taught courses exploring relationships between music and dance.

Erik Pearson brings almost 30 years of music industry song-writing, guitar and claw-hammer banjo playing to round out this dynamic group. Erik has worked with dozens of artists throughout the country, including award winning recordings with story teller Diane Ferlatte.

The band's debut CD earned recognition as the Americana Album of the Year by the Independent Music Awards Vox Pop Vote. In addition to performances on A Prairie Home Companion, the Kennedy Center, numerous festivals and venues across the US, The Evie Ladin Band has played to audiences in Australia, Scotland, Indonesia and Nigeria. They've quite literally performed around the globe!

This promises to be an excellent, high energy show. So, join us September 22nd, at 8 PM at the Friendship Hall for a great night of Americana Folk music with the Evie Ladin Band!
